Joshua, his wife Jessica, and their three children – Jacob (13), Josiah (10) and Jaycie (7) - have lived in Greenville since 2010. Joshua graduated from Campbell University Divinity School in May of 2010. Joshua began serving at Oakmont Baptist as a Christian Education Intern in January 2009 and in June 2010 joined the staff full time at Oakmont as the Minister of Education and Children. In the summer of 2021 Joshua resigned from his position at Oakmont and began working as a Kindergarten teaching assistant at South Greenville Elementary School that fall. He worked in the school until the end of October 2022 before starting his current role as Executive Director for a non-profit in Greenville – Parents for Public Schools of Pitt County. Serving for over 12 years in congregational ministry and for 15 months in the public school system uniquely positioned Joshua to work with Parents for Public Schools of Pitt County to advance the role of families and communities in securing a high-quality public education for each child in Pitt County. Joshua also works with Greenville Little League Baseball as the “Voice of Elm Street Park” where he is the scorekeeper and public address announcer for little league games and Little League Softball World Series Games at Stallings Stadium at Elm Street Park.
