Wednesday Bible Study
A Backwards Study of the New Testament

Last year we began working our way backwards through the New Testament. We have worked through the Book of Revelation and are currently in 1st Timothy. Some of these smaller books rarely get looked at in a systematic way. If you are looking for a “verse by verse” study of the Bible, please join us on Wednesday as we walk backwards in scripture together!

Day Be Filled With

Chasing After the Wind

Solomon, one of the wisest men that ever lived, used the phrase “chasing after the wind” several times in the book of Ecclesiastes. This appears to be the theme of the whole book. The phrase “chasing after the wind” is a metaphor for the pursuit of futility. Solomon, the man who had everything at his disposal, found all the things that he pursued, were simply pointless.

Solomon was selected by the Lord to lead the people of Israel after the death of his father, King David. He had everything prepared for him to succeed as the next King. He had power, position, possessions, prosperity, and great wisdom. These gifts were placed into Solomon’s life to allow him to choose well and lead well. Yet over his lifetime, he drifted away from the Lord’s commands and upon his death, the Kingdom was split in two, and Israel never returned to the glory experienced in the days of David and Solomon. Ecclesiastes is the story of a man who had everything and still failed miserably. We too can learn from his mistakes and not repeat them in our lives.

Solomon’s first mistake was thinking he could secure peace by following the pattern of other national leaders by taking many foreign wives for himself. Rather than trust God to provide peace, Solomon sought the same pattern of other neighboring Sultans and Kings. Solomon built a great army with horses and chariots to defend the nation from enemy invasions and defeat his adversaries. Solomon chased after pleasure in many forms. Solomon found satisfaction in large building projects and expansive gardens. He had numerous servants at his every disposal. Solomon learned too late in life that all of this was simply “chasing after the wind.”

The key to Solomon’s downfall was he did not live his life in consideration of God’s word and God’s plan for his life. Solomon found out pursuing wisdom and understanding was only madness and folly. It is equally foolish to think that one can completely control the outcome of their life. While Solomon sought to make a name for himself, apart from God, his legacy and reputation only crumbled.

The shining spotlight in Solomon’s advice for others can be found in the last chapter. His tone changes as he looks back over his life and sadly acknowledges it was all in vain. His closing words are words to us today. “Now all has been heard; here is the conclusion of the matter: Fear God and keep His commandments, for this is the duty of mankind. For God will bring every deed into judgement, including every hidden thing, whether it is good or evil.” (Ecclesiastes 12:13-14)

Solomon’s advice for us is echoed by Jesus in Matthew 6:33. “But seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added to you.”

There are many transitions occurring in our world today. Political divisions in the world and in the nations are at an all time high. Economies that were once thriving are now in shambles. Communities that were once safe places for people are becoming unstable. Families that were once tightly knitted together are now crumbling. Inflation is touching every person’s budget and difficult decisions are having to be made as to how to use the resources we have. The institutions we once had full faith and trust in are eroding quickly.

It is so easy to get caught up in the avalanche of despair we see daily on the news. Solomon had it right in the end. “Fear God and Keep His commandments.” Jesus restated the framework by which we should live out our days – “Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness.” As the whirlwinds encircle our lives, may we find the peace of God that passes all understanding and be found faithful to God in the end!

Selah – Meditate on these things.
